Made by Silly Software - the makers of StackOverflow. My favourites are: Gentle Rain Clock Another lovely clock, this time it doesn't need an image, just the background color. Mood Clock A simple clock with beautiful colors. A: Landsun's Clock Simple and colorful. Source Windows Linux Mac From City Place to Gallery Place, D.C.'s food hall boom has become well-known. There's no reason you can't make that same experience available in your area, though, as food halls are popping up all over the country. D.C. is in very good shape, with a food hall that opened in May of 2015, the Gallery Place Centre, so many questions come to mind when dealing with a food hall. What's the difference between a food hall and a food court? A food court, while a moderately common site in most big cities, is a basic name for a food cart or the like that hangs out on a mall. Food halls or markets, however, are more permanent, take up a larger amount of ground, and serve a variety of foods. Best of all, with the proper licensing, it's very likely your local government will grant your team access to a space like that as well. A food court is a concept that began in New York City in the 1990s, and has slowly made its way to other major cities. Some of them are very cool, such
